

INSIDE THE TURNBERRY LIGHTHOUSE

Step inside one of the most famous buildings in world golf

Issue 155 • £4.45
@BunkeredOnline | bunkered.co.uk

Scotland's Only Golf Magazine

bunkered

PREVIEW

US OPEN

New venue, new state,
new level of difficulty
See p70

'WOOD' YOU LIKE A GAME?

The rise and rise of hickory golf
See p84

SKIN CANCER

Getting to grips with golf's
silent killer
See p94

NEW SEASON

NEW BALLS

Everything you need to know to get the right ball for your game

NEW GEAR

Cobra King F7

Callaway XR Pro

Wilson Staff Triton

Benross Tribe

Bushnell Pro X2

FootJoy ContourFIT

Evnroll putters

The latest polo
shirts & wedges

HIT MORE GREENS!

5 MOVES TO MASTER ➔

'STOP HUNTING FLAGS' ➔

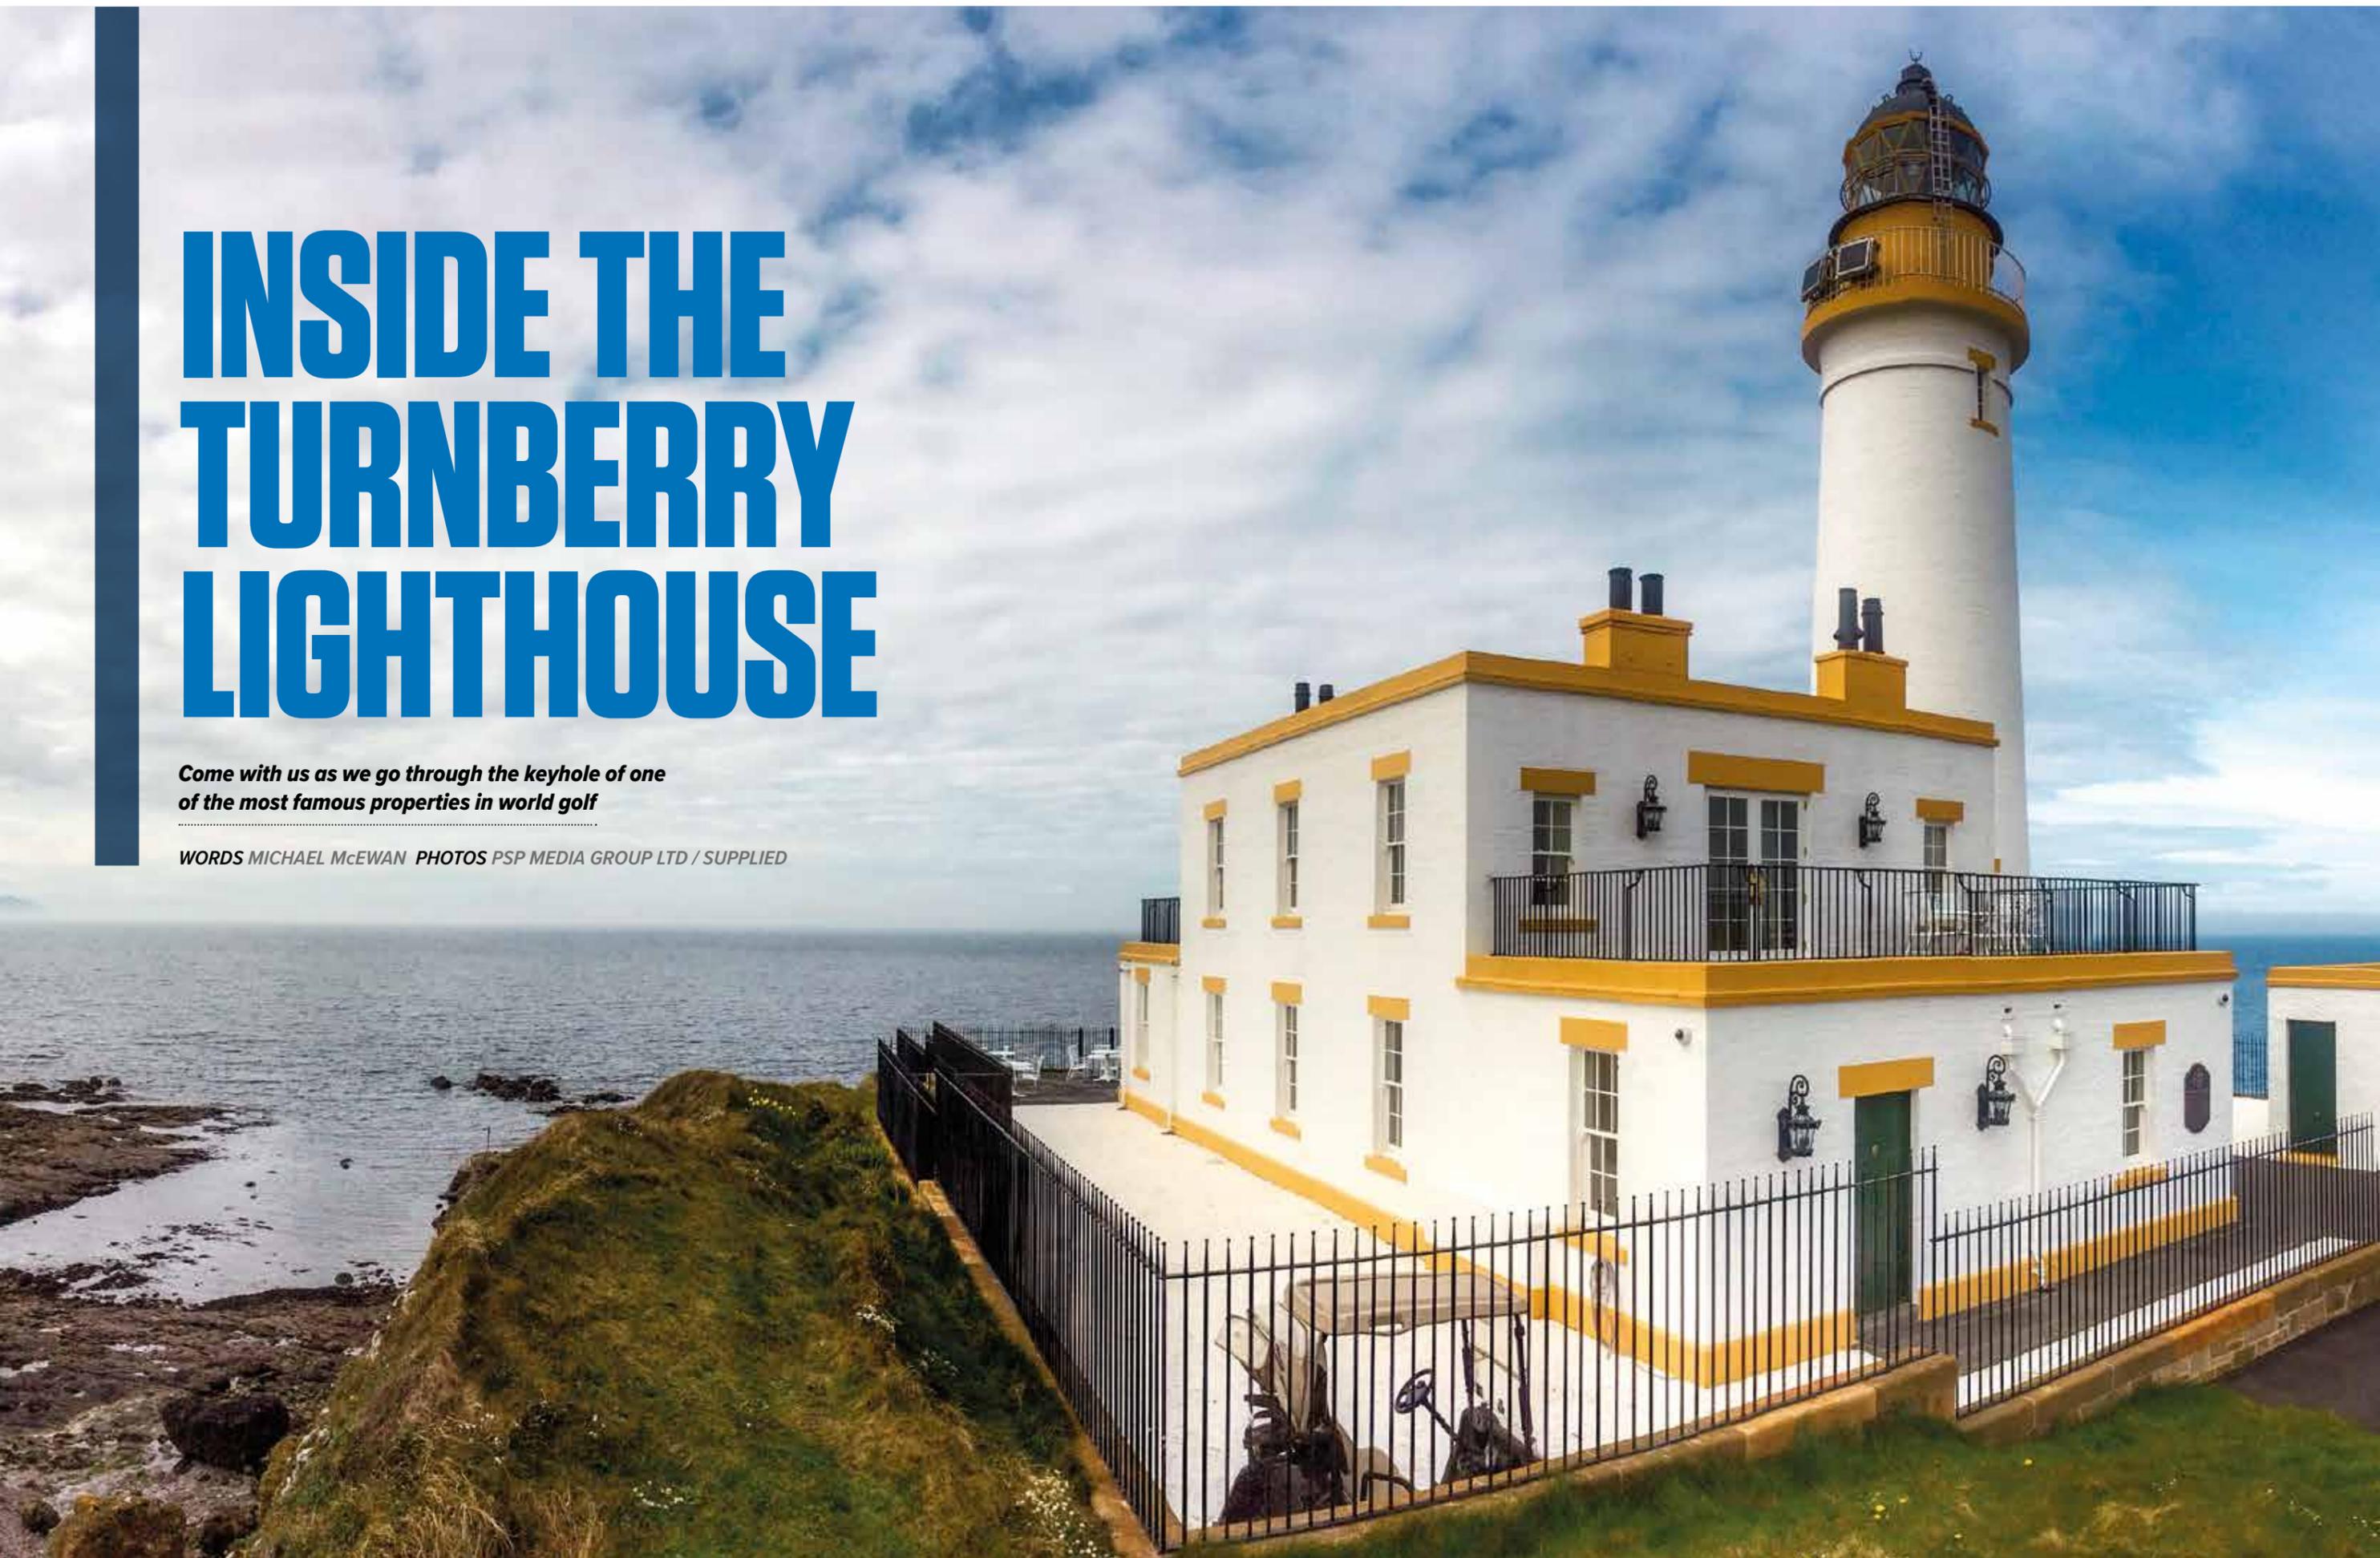

BOOST YOUR G.I.R. % ➔

INSIDE THE TURNBERRY LIGHTHOUSE

Come with us as we go through the keyhole of one of the most famous properties in world golf

WORDS MICHAEL McEWAN PHOTOS PSP MEDIA GROUP LTD / SUPPLIED

WATCH OUR EXCLUSIVE VID!

Our man Michael McEwan takes a tour of the new lighthouse...

youtube.com/bunkered

The main living quarters in the lighthouse are located on the lower level and, like pretty much everything, it has been largely built from new. Only the staircase and bannister are original. Renowned interior designer Mary Fox Linton sourced all of the items, deciding on a subtle, nautical theme throughout. Guests can enjoy relaxing in front of the 60-inch Samsung curved TV screen, whilst sipping a very rare, very new wine from a vineyard to Eric Trump, son of the resort's owner and current US president Donald Trump.

The Halfway House terrace is a perfect place to relax mid-round on a sunny day. Incidentally, the lighthouse itself is still fully operational. Despite having lain uninhabited since the 1980s, the light itself still functions and is powered by solar panels.

The Halfway House takes up the back lower portion of the lighthouse. Tastefully furnished with leather seats and with floor-to-ceiling windows, it offers stunning views out across the sea towards Ailsa Craig, Arran and beyond. Golfers are welcome to stop here and have a bite to eat or something to drink before resuming their round. An egg-timer at the counter, right, is set to ten minutes to ensure that there are no unnecessary hold-ups on the course.

TURNBERRY LIGHTHOUSE

The Presidential Suite is the more senior of the two bedrooms in the lighthouse, both of which are located in the upstairs part of it. Matching the bedrooms in the main hotel, it is tastefully furnished in rich mahogany and gold leaf, complemented by locally sourced fabrics and furnishings. Fun fact: the lighthouse dates to 1873 and was built by family members of Robert Louis Stevenson. Consequently, plans are now afoot to source early editions of some of his most famous works - Kidnapped, Treasure Island and the like - for guests of the lighthouse to enjoy.

The Presidential Suite's terrace sits directly above the Halfway House and enjoys the same spectacular view. Of course, such luxury doesn't come cheap, with prices starting from £3,500 per night. It's pricey - but worth it.

Whilst slightly smaller and offering a golf course rather than sea view, the second suite is furnished in the same style as the Presidential Suite. Both en suite bathrooms, meanwhile, feature stunning free-standing baths, where you can soak and gaze out of the window at the waves crashing onto the rocks below.

